NEWSREADER: Black Caps batsman Scott Styris has revealed his latest injury setback is unlikely to keep him out of cricket for long. Styris experienced a minor calf injury batting Auckland home against Otago, and is unbeaten 74 in the State Shield Match on Tuesday. He's being rested from today's domestic one-dayer against Canterbury and Christchurch as a precaution.

SCOTT STYRIS: It's just a tight calf muscle. It's nothing serious hopefully. And I've been working with a physio every day and hopefully I'll be back into it in the next day or so fully.

NEWSREADER: Scott Styris says he's hoping to be back fit for Sunday's Twenty20 match also against Canterbury.

As we're travelling across the Tasman to save the Black Caps in the Tri Series, Styris says he's still eyeing up a game in Perth but this latest injury problem should not prevent him from travelling.

Two time champion Serena Williams is on the comeback in her third round match at the Australian Tennis Open in Melbourne. The American was comprehensively beaten 6-1 in the first set by Russian fifth seed Nadia Petrova, and she looked gone 5-3 down in the second. But Williams has clawed her way back producing some dazzling fighting shots to take the second set 7-5. The third set has just got underway and Williams has already broken Petrova's service and leads 2-0.
